

I CAN'T STAND IT ANYMORE

Prelude: d - C - d - a - d - G - A4 - A

1. I can't stand it anymore, we all come from one source, no matter what skin color or what stature, no matter what origin or shores.
But some of our human race think they are predestined to elevate, to influence their fellow beings, to rule and to destine their fate.

2. They think they have been given the right to disqualify, exclude or suppress those who are different or come from the opposite side, using violence more or less.
Apparently the homeland determines who may serve and who may rule.
Those to be oppressed are too stupid anyway, only the rulers are cunning and cool.

Bridge:

I really can't understand what makes people believe they can deny others their human rights.
They've got the obligation to single out their fellow human beings with gun and fights to achieve their goals all the same how they act, they determine liberty.
How can one lose one's humanity, shaking off all the suffering and misery.

Interlude: d - G - d - a - d - G - A4 - A

3. No, I can't understand at all what goes on in such sick minds.
Are they completely unable to recognize what connects human beings, what humanity defines?
Why do they think they are better? They are the first-class people and chosen to judge others, to determine their fate, the direction and who's enemy, who's friend.
4. I can't accept that those among us who permanently propagate hatred, violence and discord are gaining the upper hand.
They seek division, subversion with sword and blade but ignore the signals they have send.
They live in their fortresses far away from their subjects.
For peace and freedom it will be the end.

Afterlude: d - G - d - a - d - G - A4 - A - d
